RESULT MOVEMENT FOR EMPIRE AND EDUCATION

It Has Served as the Foundation for the Present Imperial Conferences Which Takes Place Annually.

Montreal, July 5.—Among those leaving on the Alen steamer tomorrow for Glasgow, are about 250 teachers and persons otherwise connected with education in Canada, who will visit England and Scotland during the summer months. This visit is the result of a movement for empire and education, instituted in 1910, and which bears the self-explanatory title of "Hands Across the Sea."

The party will land at Glasgow and travel through Scotland and England and enjoy privileges rarely accorded to English people themselves. They will be received by the Duke of Marlborough at Blenheim, by the Countess of Warwick, the Marquis of Salisbury and Andrew Carnegie besides many other persons of rank and prominence who are taking great interest in the visit of the overseas teachers.

To Travel Separately.
The nucleus of the party gathered at Winnipeg and the members travelled east by special train, being joined at points along the route by the rest of those making the trip. The representatives from New Foundland will travel separately by the Sardinian, as they were unable to succeed in getting the whole party together in one boat.

At Ottawa the members were received by Dr. Reith, minister of the interior who gave a brief address in which he remarked on the good service the Canadian teachers were doing, first in stimulating mutual interest between Canada and the motherland, and secondly as an excellent advertisement to their own country.

The Archbishop of Bourges' Land and primate of all Canada is honorary chairman of the party.

This is the fourth time the trip has been made since the movement was organized by Fred N. Key. It is under the patronage of the government of Canada and Newfoundland and all the governments save Ontario. It has served as foundation of the present imperial conferences of teachers that take place in England annually.

The organizers of the movement expect to be in a position to found a permanent club in London, as the residential headquarters of Canadian teachers traveling in England.

ALFRED LITTLETON DEAD; RESULT PLAYING CRICKET

Famous Athlete who Achieved Political Success Succumbed to Over-exertion in the Game

London, July 5.—The Rt. Hon. Alfred Littleton, member of the house of commons for St. George's, Hanover square, died last night. He was born in 1857, the eighth son of the fourth Lord Littleton, and Mr. John Limer, daughter of Sir Stephen O. Littleton.

Alfred Littleton was famous as an athlete who achieved political success. He helped to win many cricket matches in the eighties. His devotion to the game was the indirect cause of his death, for in a match on the 52nd year, he played a night on June 28, scoring nine runs, the exertion of which proved fatal. His death is a serious loss to the cricket world.

Alfred Littleton was secretary of state for the colonies, 1903-5. He was a member of the royal commission for the port of London and was secretary of the Transvaal commission.

ELECTRIC STORM STOPS THE WHEELS IN TORONTO

For Five Hours Every Industry Dependent Upon Toronto Electric Power Co.

Toronto, July 5.—A bad electrical storm which yesterday suddenly terminated the heat wave of the few days and swept the country in the greatest rainfall of the year, struck down the electrical development company's transmission line. For five hours Toronto was practically paralyzed. Every industry dependent upon the power of the Toronto Electric Light company was at a standstill. A huge generator at a central station plant was burned out, and then Toronto stood still—or nearly so.

It was a terrible storm sweeping its course over almost the whole of the western part of the province. The rainfall consisted of a steady drizzle in two hours as much rain fell as during the whole of the past month.

King street subway was flooded to a depth of a foot or more.

INFLUX INCREASES 13 PER CENT FOR APRIL AND MAY

Ottawa, July 5.—The total immigration in Canada during April and May, 1913, was 146,000, made up of 55,940 British, 32,500 American, and 57,113 from all other countries.

During April and May, 1912, the total was 129,133, composed of 49,279 British, 33,595 Americans, and 46,259 from all other countries.

The increase is 13 per cent. The figures show an increase of nearly ten thousand from British with a corresponding decrease from the American government.

MONEY DOSEING THROUGHOUT EAST SAYS TRUST MAN

Conrad Webster of Montreal and Eastern Townships Co.
Predicts Easier Money

BALKAN WAR NOT COUNTED A FACTOR

Predictions of Enormous Harvest Helps Considerably to Re-establish Confidence in Minds of Eastern Money Lenders.

That the likelihood of further complications in the Balkan would not be an appreciable effect on continuing the stringency of the money market was stated today by Conrad Webster of the Montreal and Eastern Townships Trust company, who is making a business trip through the West.

Said at the Royal George, Mr. Webster stated that already the financial situation was easing in the city and the movement would inevitably spread westward in the immediate future.

"Every indication points to a record harvest this year," said Mr. Webster, "and by the fall, with money in circulation local and the inevitable slackening of the financial markets of the world, I think there is no room for doubt that things will be just as brisk as they were a year ago."

According to Mr. Webster, it is improbable that the renewed hostilities in the Balkans will have any great effect on the situation. In his opinion, the great powers have already decided on the future of eastern Europe, and no matter which of the erstwhile allies fortune may favor, no change in the balance of power will be allowed.

The renewal of the war is rather a hopeful sign, for, in his opinion, the great powers have already decided on the future of eastern Europe, and no matter which of the erstwhile allies fortune may favor, no change in the balance of power will be allowed.

WATER TOO FAST; PIPE LINE RIVER PACKS HIS TOOLS

Temporary Main Must Be Laid to South Siders on Low Level Bridge.

MANY LEAKS REPAIRED MANY MORE TO FIX

In Meantime Diver Does Not Relish Working in Stream Where He Has to Be Anchored to the Bottom to Stay Put.

After many attempts at the risk of his life the diver has been compelled to give up the work of repairing the water main at the bottom of the Saskatchewan river. Many leaks have been repaired nearer the shore on either side, but the water is so swift and deep in the center that it has been found impossible at the present time to make the repairs. The work will have to stand over now for another month or six weeks until the water clears up and lowers sufficiently to permit of the completion of the job.

In the meantime the engineering department has been busy at work to get pure water to the south side, a temporary water main will be laid across the lower level bridge. This will connect the new pumping plant with the six-inch main now laid on the main at the bottom of the river.

The laying of this water main was the most difficult part of the work. It took more than two and a half days. When it is connected with the new pumping plant, the water will be able to get to the south side of the river by a temporary supply of filtered water. On account of the main on Ross Road only being six inches diameter, it will not be possible to lay a larger main across the bridge, and therefore the whole of the south side may not get the pure water until the leaks in the main at the bottom of the river have been repaired.

The engineering department has been doing everything within its power to get this water service completed, but the present condition of the river makes it absolutely impossible.

The engineer even went so far as to try anchoring the diver down in the stream, but this plan was not successful and would not work. On several occasions while at work the diver has narrowly escaped from being captured by the log jams in the river.

If the few additional parts necessary for the temporary service across the bridge can be secured in time by express, there should be no difficulty in getting the south side connected to the north side pumping station sometime next week.</

HAS WOODROW WILSON A VISION OF POSSIBILITIES OF ARMY OF PEACE?

With the Gatun lock ready for the water and the Panama Canal nearing completion there is approaching the day when, unless some new enormous work is to be undertaken by the republic to the south, there must be disbanded the greatest army of constructors that the world has ever known.

In the carrying out of this great public work there has been gathered together and trained together, a new kind of constructive force; an army of efficient, skilled, schooled men in the public service, whose possibilities in achievement cannot be measured by any standard set by any private organization engaged in any similar work.

There was a very prevalent habit of thought once, now very rapidly disappearing, that governments could not safely undertake large works such as this. Governments were supposed to be uninvolved, permeated with politics, tainted with graft and government works pictured as the haven of the office-seeker and the loafer. Panama has done much to change that notion. Where a French company with millions of assets and all the incentive that private interest can give made scarcely a dent in the isthmus, the isthmian canal commission, under the United States government, stepped into the plague spot which the French had left, turned Colon into a health resort, cut the mortality list to the lowest upon any great work at present in progress, dug the abandoned French machinery out of the mud and jungle and put it to work, proceeding efficiently and economically to turn an alligator swamp into a highway for the world's traffic. In the building of the canal the work has been carried out in less time than the best engineers estimated it could be done, at less cost than their estimate, and under conditions enjoyed by those who did the work which were superior to the conditions enjoyed by any similar working force upon any privately-constructed undertaking in the world.

It is a remarkable coincidence that just with the completion of the canal approaching, Woodrow Wilson is announcing that the United States government proposes to open up Alaska with government railways.

Possibly the President of United States sees the possibilities of the new peace army of the Panama. If so, it may be accepted as a fact that United States has entered upon a new era, the finish of which will not be while there is any great public work left to do.

WHO WILL BE NEXT FOR COMMISSION GOVERNMENT?

With Alderman Livingstone now among those who declare for the commission form of government, it looks as though the time when the present Edmonton city charter will be relegated to the waste basket is not far in the future.

Alderman East, May and Smith are already in favor. Alderman Livingstone is fourth. Alderman Driscoll is of opinion that some more direct responsibility would improve the situation and he is ready to accept commission government when he is sure he thoroughly understands it.

Who will be sixth to make a majority. It looks as though it is up to Alderman Lundy.

POSITION TOO RIDICULOUS FOR CONSIDERATION

A more ridiculous and childish position than that adopted by Mayor Short when he refused to answer the question put by Alderman East as to whether he, as mayor, had tried to employ the Calgary street railway superintendent at $10,000 a year, and upon what authority, could scarcely be credited as coming from a man holding the position of importance and responsibility of mayor of Edmonton.

Alderman East's question was justified by the circumstances, and was admissible both by the section quoted and the spirit of the charter of which Mayor Short claims to be the author. He was entitled to an answer.

Instead, the mayor comes up like a soda fountain, and splutters a malediction at the alderman intended to convey the idea that he, in some way, was responsible for the failures of the administration last year and that in his capacity as an alderman he had never accomplished anything for the benefit of the city, whereas the speaker, his worship the mayor, was accomplishing great things to unravel the tangle which came to him as a legacy from his predecessor.

Waiving the point that the mayor's diatribes do not constitute an answer to a perfectly legitimate question, but on the contrary constitute a direct refusal upon the part of the mayor to abide by the provisions of his own charter, the mayor's position, even upon his own statement, makes him absolutely ridiculous.

Alderman East was not the administration last year, nor was he even in harmony with the administration. He was, in fact, distinctly in opposition, and the very thing against which he now protests, and against which his question was directed—dark lantern methods of administration—was protested against quite as vehemently last year. A research of the files will show that Alderman East stood at all times most emphatically against such sub rosa transactions as the McInnis deal, now charged by public mores from one account to another, without a by-your-leave, and against all such in camera misadventures of the administration. It was this insistent protest which made Alderman East so unpopular with the administration last year and so popular with the electors. To try to make him responsible at this time for the things he opposed last year is absurd.

But the man who was the head and front of the administration, and to whom responsibility must be attached, if such a thing can be done under the Short charter, was the then mayor, George S. Armstrong.

The memory of the public on some things is proverbially deficient, but not so deficient that electors will fail to remember that it was George S. Armstrong whose name appeared at the head of the nomination paper circulated in behalf of William Short. Nor will they have forgotten that the newspapers which are now railing with all their venom against the past administration and attempting to attach some of the blame to Alderman East on account of the fact that he sat at the council board are the same newspapers which less than a year ago were the champions and defenders of that administration.

If either of the newspapers have forgotten, or if Mayor Short has forgotten, they and he can refresh their memories by turning back in their own files and looking up on the interview given out by Ex-Mayor Armstrong upon the day after his election in which that gentleman gave it as his commentary upon the majority tendered Mayor Short that it was a vindication of himself and his administration.

Mayor Short's position is altogether too ridiculous for consideration.

BANK CLEARINGS. TELL THE STORY

Edmonton and Winnipeg alone of all the cities of first magnitude in the Dominion of Canada show an increase in their bank clearings for the week this year over the corresponding week last year. Cities like Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, Calgary and Ottawa have all gone back, some of them millions of dollars, while Edmonton has shown a gain of one and a half million dollars and Winnipeg a gain of three million dollars.

This tells the story so plain that they who run may read, and it should be plain to those cities standing still.

Edmonton, like Winnipeg, is backed by the resources of an abundantly fertile soil. With high prices for land driving the farming population out of United States, Edmonton and the Peace river country beyond is the mecca for the homesteader and the homeseeker who comes prepared to buy land. In the face of a general slump all over the Dominion, Edmonton goes right ahead, affected only in so far as her progress can be affected by circumstances absolutely beyond her control.

JUST PARAGRAPHS

With seventy-eight less saloons than a year ago, the people of United States drank seven million five hundred thousand gallons more hard liquor. At this rate of progress the prohibition wave promises to develop into an alcoholic wave.

How would it do for the mayor to turn some of his systematizers loose on the police station? Justified by the amount of lawbreakers not apprehended it should be possible to considerably reduce the cost and get the same results.

The question is, what would MacKenzie and Mann want to sell their railroad to the government for when they can get all the money they want from the government to build the road and then own it?

Mayor Short's system of governing the city under the charter is simplicity itself. When any provision of the charter, such as Sec. 50, does not meet with his convenience he ignores the provision.

By the science of deduction Buck has discovered that the car burns cost more than the original estimate. Watson! The needle,

TODAY IN DOMINION HISTORY

As indicating the class of entertainments provided the patrons of British American playhouses a century ago, the program of the ill-fated Theatre Royal for a performance to be given "by permission" of the Lieutenant-Governor on "Monday evening, July 5th, 1813," is not without interest.

The Halifax amusement seekers who doubtless filled the playhouse, which had been "well attended and cleared," a century ago tonight, were afforded a wide variety of entertainment, beginning with the playing of "The Darn of old Paul" by the band of the Sixty-fourth Regiment.

This was followed by "An Oration," Address, by a Gentleman." Then followed "An overture on the ocean accompanied by two pianofortes, one of which will be performed by a young lady five years of age."

"The hand played, after which came 'A Recitation—Eliza, by a Gentleman.' The program then continued in regard to the identity of all who appeared. A 'Comic Song—The Fifth of Babel, or Matrimonial Strife' is sung by a Gentleman," doubtless convulsed the house, and one may imagine that wild applause greeted "Being Bailed with a poor wife" on the piano, by a Lady."

Other features of the program were a "Comic Song—A Captain Bold in Hainland," Miss Bailey's Oboe, "Clarion Concerto," "A Hornpipe," and "I'll sing as mair to you, than any o' the bairns," followed by billings to boxes and four shillings to upper boxes and pit.

Doors open at quarter passed seven, and to begin precisely at eight. Finally, prospective patrons are informed that "Mr. High, Master of the Kings Works has selected tonight the theatre is perfectly secure in every respect."

Ninety-seven years ago to-day loss was formed of the thickness of window glass that occupied Canada and the Maritime Provinces, and crops were generally destroyed by intense cold.

THOUSANDS OF CASES PROVE THE QUICKEST CURE OF CATARRH OF THE OZONE

When germs attack the lining of the nose, make you sneeze and gag—when later on they infect the bronchial tubes—how can you follow them with a cough spray?

You can't do it—that's all. Cough syrups go to the stomach—that's why they fail.

But Catarrhazone goes everywhere—gets right after the germs—kills them—reaches the soreness—cures the inflammation—makes Catarrh disappear.

"Nothing I have ever used gives the warm, soothing sensation of Catarrhazone. It is inhaled by the mouth, falls out, 'I was in a frightful way with catarrh of the nose and throat—had droppings, hard breathing, had breath and indigestion. Catarrhazone relieved at once and cured me thoroughly. It is invariable relief, sore throat and bronchial trouble.'"

Not difficult for Catarrhazone to cure, because it contains the essence of pine balsam and other antiseptics that simply mean death to catarrh. Large size costs $1.00, and contains two months' treatment. Smaller size, 50c. and 50c. all druggists and storekeepers, or The Catarrhazone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

LIMITATION.

As when the imperial bird wide-drooping sails From his wide arc, lowering above the seas.

That his the acid and rugged Hebrides, A force which he unconsciously bounds

The waves that tumble foaming to the shore, So then, my soul; impatient of restriction, With desolating hopes and longings

Aspirest still, and still the stern prediction Stays us as them: "No further Shall thou go!"

But, ah! the eagle feels no thing affliction, Nor can the broken waves thy disappointment know.

—Florence Earle Coates, in the Century.

GETTING HIS MONEY'S WORTH.

(New York Post.)

A very pompous and officious judge fined a young lawyer ten dollars for contempt of court one morning. After he had been fined, the attorney walked up to the bench and laid down a ten dollar bill.

"What is that for?" asked the judge. "For contempt, your honor," was the reply.

"But I didn't find you for contempt," said the judge; "there must be some mistake."

"Oh, no there isn't," replied the old lawyer. "I have cherished a secret contempt for this court for a long time, and I'm willing to pay for it."

SAFETY VALVE.

The lecture platform affords one vice-president an escape from the painful obscurity that has hitherto been the badge of all his tribe.—Chicago Record-Herald.

PROVING HIS TITLE.

A. T. Hamilton complained in New York that he was not getting his money's worth for his military uses of all wild game.

Mr. Hamilton pointed out that many of the birds were killed by the military, and that many other birds were killed by the military, and that many other birds were killed by the military.

"I represent the birds," Mr. Hamilton said to the military, "and I want you to represent the birds."

A young gentleman of the odorous persuasion had promised his girl a pair of white gloves for a Christmas gift. Entering a large department store, he had just finished looking up where those goods were displayed, and, approaching rather hesitatingly, remarked: "Ah, and a pair of gloves."

"How long do you want them?" inquired the businesslike clerk. "Ah, doesn't want 'em to rest 'em. Ah, wants 'em to buy 'em," replied the other indignantly.—Harper's Magazine.

PANTAGES.....TWO HEADLINERS
AT THE PANTAGES

One Will Be a Musical Comedy Sketch and Other of the Dramatic Kind.

The Pantages will have two headliners next week. One will be a one-act musical comedy sketch and the other directly the opposite which will be of the heavy dramatic kind. The musical comedy is to be furnished by Mendo Moore and company who will present "Sorority Days." A half dozen pretty girls with splendid voices and charming dancers form a part of the company while the six men are all good singers. The longer part will be taken by Mr. Moore himself.

In addition to this the Pantages management will offer a second headliner, William Schilling, well known in the east as an actor, will present "Destiny," vaudeville's great dramatic success. It has played for many weeks in the east and scored successes wherever it went. The sketch presented by several of the vaudeville circuit in the eastern states and while in New York scored a big triumph.

Another feature of the bill will be supplied by Bob Albright, Alberta's favorite singer. The man who was booked to round the circuit, only this week and will commence his vaudeville career in Edmonton.

Those fifty girls, two of them, will be another attraction. They are dancers and singers and entertainers of high order and besides all these things, they are pretty.

Carmen and Clifton have a pretty musical act while Marshall and Truitt are comedians that are funny every moment they are on the stage.

MISS HUTTON IS STILL IN FRONT

She Continues to Lead in the Contest for Queen of Coming Carnival.

Miss Mary Hutton continues to lead the contest for Queen of the Carnival, which is being held under the auspices of the Edmonton baseball club, in connection with the Con. T. Kennedy shows, which come to Edmonton for one week, starting July 11. Votes for all the contestants are piling up at a rapid rate, and the competition for places is becoming keener as the day of the opening of the big shows draws near.

The Con. T. Kennedy shows will have played more large fair dates than any similar organization in America, which means that the attractions offered by Mr. Kennedy and his associates are better handled and more attractive in every way than any carnival company now on tour. In one enclosure the Kennedy company have 10 different shows, divided between amusement enterprises and educational features.

The standing of the various contestants for the enviable position of Queen of the Carnival, and possession of the $150 diamond ring, which will be awarded to the most popular young woman in Edmonton, is as follows:

Miss Mary Hutton ..... 2,921
Miss Annie Boehme ..... 2,101

PANTAGES ACTOR
PROVES A HERO

William Schilling, who is appearing at the Pantages next week, is the possessor of a gold watch, which he has worn for the last four years, and was presented to him by the citizens of Courtland, New York, for saving the life of the mayor's five-year-old child. The little tot had run in front of a street car just as the car was turning a corner. It was impossible for the motorist to stop in time to prevent running over the prostrate form, but Mr. Schilling, who happened to be standing on the corner, dashed to the centre of the track, picked the little girl up and threw her to one side. He then grabbed hold of the front of the car and held on until it was brought to a standstill.

A success is usually just a man who wasn't afraid to fail.

FORCED TO HUSTLE
TO PRESENT WORK

Mendo Moore, who appears at the Pantages next week with his own company in a one act musical comedy success entitled "Sorority Days," traveled all the way from Halifax, Nova Scotia to Boston to be at Kelt's theatre to fill an engagement he had been booked for. The reason for such a jump was due to the fact that he had been held up by a wreck near Truro, N.S., for over 24 hours and consequently could not fill all his engagements in the Maritime provinces.

He kept on to Halifax and after playing a one night stand, left the next morning for Boston. He had to be there the following night and on arrival, only had one hour to reach the theatre, get into his stage costume and appear on the stage in time for the curtain. His company also had to do the hustle act in order to proceed with the sketch.

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK
AN UNALLOYED JOY

In Spite of Modesty of Vehicle Entertains Audiences by His Own Natural Talents.

In spite of the modesty of the vehicle, Raymond Hitchcock was an unalloyed joy. Not all in the audience had seen him before, but his first appearance was a signal for laughter, and from that moment until the curtain went down his slightest gesture drew a chuckle from everyone in the house. There is no disguising the fact that Hitchcock is one of the funniest comedians on the stage today. He does not rely on a frank make-up to get him a chuckle, but on his own natural face. Hitchcock's success is due to the fact that he has the knack of getting the audience to see things from his humorous point of view, and to laugh with him. His current speech was a sensational classic.

He kept on to Halifax and after playing a one night stand, left the next morning for Boston. He had to be there the following night and on arrival, only had one hour to reach the theatre, get into his stage costume and appear on the stage in time for the curtain. His company also had to do the hustle act in order to proceed with the sketch.

PRIZE LAUGHING
BILL OF SEASON

It Will Be Seen at the Empire Theatre First Half of the Coming Week.

Announced as the prize laughing bill of the season the Orpheum vaudeville programme which will be seen at the Empire theatre the first half of next week will be headlined by Milton Pollock, formerly stage manager for the dramatic productions of George Ade, the famous Indian humorist. During the long period of his engagement in this capacity and as an actor with the comedians of the most important producing managers, Mr. Pollock was frequently assigned to various of Mr. Ade's plays. In that way he became closely associated with Mr. Ade in inducing Mr. Ade to write "Speaking to Father," in which he became one of the players. The piece abounds in typical George Adeisms in that author's best style. In addition, it is capably acted by Mr. Pollock and his associate players.

A character more adaptable to humorous treatment than a country justice of the peace could scarcely be found. When Walker S. "Hubb" Dickinson created his now justly famous "Kix-justice of the Peace," it must have been after a thorough study of that most important of all small town officials. "The Kix-justice of the Peace" must have been an excellent play on which to win a prize.

One of Spain's best beloved and best known dancers, Sigordia Arnera, has been engaged to the starry eyes of the American vaudeville manager and with the assistance of Sig. Victor will present a programme of national dances which includes the famous Jota, da Baion, Arrea had the honor of being one of the trio of notable artists selected to entertain at the wedding of King Alfonso. Sig. Victor is a famous bull fighter. His closest friend, another tragedian, another lord, was killed in the arena, after which Victor retired. The costumes he wears in the present offering are the same which were used when his daring and grace delighted the jovers of the arena.

A clever young woman, who for some reason or other prefers to be known simply as Phina, is offering an exceptionally capable characterization—that of a pretty, buxom colored girl. In her efforts she has the assistance of a trio of clever girls and boys dressed in swaggy evening attire. The trio, led by Phina, sing, dance, entertain and generally make merry in a way that never fails to arouse the approval of the audience. Phina is not a "Plek" act, but a performance in which she and her company attempt and succeed in exhibiting what is commonly known as "class."

Throughout their partnership which has extended over a long term of years, Walsh and Bentley have never been content to let well enough alone, and have continued bettering their little vehicle, "The Belbow and the Athlete" until today they have in it one of the best blended combinations of comedy and gymnastic work before the public. As athletes they are capable of holding their own and their comedy depends upon their own sense of humor and ability as comedians. With a personality that reaches over the top of the most important producing managers, Mr. Pollock was frequently assigned to various of Mr. Ade's plays. In that way he became closely associated with Mr. Ade in inducing Mr. Ade to write "Speaking to Father," in which he became one of the players. The piece abounds in typical George Adeisms in that author's best style. In addition, it is capably acted by Mr. Pollock and his associate players.

Edmonton Men Elected—The president and the secretary-treasurer of the recently formed Provincial Poultry Association are both Edmonton men. H. B. Hunter having been elected president, and W. McE. ## WHY I WROTE "FINE FEATHERS"

Eugene Walter, Brilliant American
Dramatist, Talks of His Most Recent Success

HITS THE HIGH COST AND LIVING STANDARD OF LIVING

EUGENE WALTER

By Eugene Walter, Author of "Fine Feathers."

Eugene Walter, author of "Fine Feathers," the season's dramatic sensation, and remembered as the author of "Paid in Full," "The Easiest Way," "The Underdog," and "Only a Wife"—plays dealing with economic conditions in the American home, has clearly defined his position as regards social conditions in his stage writings. His "Fine Feathers," which held New York and Chicago spellbound all season, is a study with the double standard of morals which obtains in modern business, and the manner in which the long arm of profit and industry and vested interests reach into the humble home of the ultimate consumer. Recently he voiced his sentiment about these lines:

"I seek to expose evil in an entertaining manner, and even were it a play, 'being an ally to reform.' They had just as soon, or rather, present the plays that deal with the economic distressing social conditions, is a matter of history. His success caused managers to lend ear to playwrights with a mission.

"Now, do not for a minute think that managers dole on dollars and cents—being an ally to reform. They had just as soon, or rather, present the plays that deal with the economic distressing social conditions, is a matter of history. His success caused managers to lend ear to playwrights with a mission.

"That brings me to an interesting phase of the theatrical situation. A fictionist, and being scarcely conscious of it, the purely commercial manager of yesterday, the man who would idealize or any pronounced leaning except the one toward Mammon, is today providing for the regeneration of the stage. The manager who a few years ago, was afraid to provide plays that might uplift the masses, owing to the probability of financial loss—this manager, who was afraid to provide a play of greater purport than the jangling of money in the cash till—is now presenting it at the demand of an awakening public. Thus it is that the producer and the playwright are working towards mutual upliftment.

Take my word, the manager of tomorrow will be both a guide and a servant of the people. He will be a man whose first concern will be the artistic fabric of his enterprise, and to whom monetary success will be secondary to the reverence, esteem, gratitude of whom he teaches and divers, whom he stimulates toward better living."

Walter entertains similar views towards the capitalist press. "In fact, the very first play, 'The Underdog' produced in Los Angeles six years ago, dealt with a substandard press. It graphically pointed out how reform, the consumption of which are plainly pointed out to a newspaper, are thwarted because they attack the interests, directly or indirectly, of the financial backers of the sheet. Walters was a newspaper writer before he became a dramatist—and he knows whereof he speaks.

"The newspaper in the most venal institution in America," he says on this score. "Nothing is more susceptible to prostitution. Its power is unlimited, and it is to be regretted that so many of them have become nothing but mere money-making slugs. But, like the theatrical managers, these newspapers are uncaring, with every revolution of their presses, the rope which they would eventually hang themselves. But, like the managers, they have seen the writing on the wall and have adjusted their conscience and methods to the great public moral awakening.

"All my plays, you will notice, have one general theme. It is about the man who works for his money instead of the man who lets his money work for him."

Here are a few observations made by Eugene Walter during the conversation:

"I don't believe the regulation of evil is possible, or can be possible. Regulation is the remedy of the reformer. They are incapable of reforming, nor have they the will to reform anything.

"My words may sound scathingly; if they do, make the most of them, for these are the principles, and my life work shall be to present them to the public through the medium of the stage. That the public has awakened to existing conditions is indicated by the hundreds of thousands of people who saw and applauded 'Fine Feathers' in New York and Chicago, cities where capitalists are playing with the masses. Watch my next play for further particulars."

EDMONTON MICHIGAN INTERESTED IN GAS HISTORY

Interesting Story of the Development of the Illuminant and its Burners

IT IS CONSIDERED THE FINEST FUEL ON EARTH

Supply for a City is Most Valuable and It Lends Particular Advantages to the Welfare of Any Community

Will the gas experts report that they have found a field sufficiently large to supply the city of Edmonton with natural gas? This is a question which every citizen is interested. Next to an adequate pure water supply, gas is the most important matter with which the council must deal the present year.

Do you ever figure out just how valuable a supply of natural gas would be, or what particular advantage it would lend to the city?

Natural gas is the finest fuel on earth. By the use of gas it is possible to refrigerate in summer at a lower cost than with ice.

A living room can be lighted for 80 hours at a cost of less than three cents when gas is selling at thirty cents per 1000 cubic feet. It is possible to heat an ordinary room for eight hours at the same price.

By means of gas a house may be heated by hot air, hot water or steam radiators.

Since gas is of such importance to Edmonton, if the experts report that they have found an adequate supply, the citizens will soon be asked to vote on the question.

A brief outline of the history of artificial and natural gas should be of interest to the citizens at this time. The historical progress made in developing and expanding the uses of gas since it was first discovered is marvellous.

History. Development of natural gas has been understood, a history of artificial and natural gas from the first discovery to the present date may be summed up as follows:

It is now thirty years since those interested in the matter first called the attention of the world to the electricity the "new illuminant" which was then brought into use and which practically threatened to supersede the use of gas for lighting purposes.

The manner in which the predictions of the scientific progress made in developing and expanding the uses of gas since it was first discovered is marvellous.

Long before the distillation of oil was found to produce illuminating gas, it had been observed that the gas which had escaped from the coal strata underneath.

In 1726 the first experiment was made on the destructive distillation of coal, the gas being sent into a bladder and tied down.

That after several days the gas would burn at the end of the pipe when ignited as long as the bladder was present. This experiment was one of the first ideas of the present day gasholders.

There are three names in connection with the first discovery of the fact that the distillation of coal would yield a gas that could be used for lighting purposes, namely, William Murdoch, a Dutchman, and Murdoch, a Scotchman.

They Worked Independently. It is quite evident that these three worked independently, one not knowing what the other was doing. However, Murdoch was the first man to put his invention into practical and commercial use. Mr. Murdoch was born in Glasgow on August 20, 1754, and in the year 1792, he carried on a number of experiments in the distillation of coal at his house in Glasgow.

He lighted his house and office with gas in 1798, he returned to Scotland at the age of thirty, and he was in the city of Glasgow when he died on November 16th, 1830.

Today, Murdoch's gas is still being used in the city of Glasgow, and his invention has been the basis of the gas industry in many other parts of the world.

Athletics and Giants Will be Contenders World's Honors

American and National League Leaders Will Undoubtedly Hook Up for Final Battle This Year Again.
McGraw's Men Will Fight Hard.

By W. J. MacBeth.

New York, July 5.—Some sort of line has been furnished on the respective strengths of the two major leagues by the intersection series concluded the end of last month. It is difficult to tell it appears very much as if the Giants and Athletics are destined once more to go for the highest honors of baseball. Certainly Connie Mack's White Elephants have so far demonstrated marked superiority over the rest of the American field. The Giants have not been so fortunate but McGraw's men are prepared for a hard fight and a keen drive to the very end of the stretch.

More will be known, of course, after the teams which have been favored by home privileges are put to the road test. So far the Eastern victors of the National League has bested the Western invaders. But now comes the time for the Phillies, Dodgers, Pirates and Browns to set out into hostile territory. If they can land Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati as stiff beings on the grounds of these Westerners as were handed when the occasional wing was visiting the section there need be no fear for the pennant traveling westward.

Philadelphia managed to swing around the west without tons of prestige. Nothing on the other end of the circuit has possibly Cleveland, has any right to aspire for the championship. The White Sox have kept in the battline without let. Waiting at the best because Callahan's other pitchers have been in much better form than the average run of twisters this season. Comiskey has a club that will doubtless develop into real class. But it is too inexperienced as a machine to do much of a figure in a pennant year. This year Cleveland is a greater possibility for the slugging of Jackson and Zolke will cover a multitude of sins. Joe Birmingham has a fair array of leery. The only form of Valkyrie has been one of the wonders of the campaign so far.

But when the American League race finally settles down no one will be surprised if Athletics and Senators are again very much by the line. The worlds champion Red Sox are better than they have shown and are bound to improve. But they cannot spot either Athletics or Senators as many games and hope to retain their laurels. But for the unfortunate illness of third baseman Eddie Foster, a Washington team would have stood most aggressive player of the type that wins. Several capable youngsters have kept the bunch fighting all the time. No one has been found who can fill Foster's shoes. After an attack of typhoid fever, Foster will be much used to his club all year. Walter Johnson, of course, is a valuable asset.

R. FITZSIMMONS SAYS FIGHTERS GET TOO MUCH

Veteran Pugilist Says Boxers
Now-a-days are Receiving
Too Much Gold

OVERPAID FOR THE
WORK THEY PERFORM

In the Old Days Only the Big Champions—Got the Big Money—Small Ones a Hundred Or So.

New York, July 5.—Too much money for too little fighting is taking the edge off the old sport, says "Bob" Fitzsimmons. "When I first came to America very good men in all classes were glad to fight for anything from a hundred to a couple of hundred dollars up. Only the big champions got big money."

"Fighting was a rough game then. It wasn't so much the money that drew men to the ring. Most of them fought because they'd rather fight than do anything else. Why, among the old-time lightweight, Joe Gans, Dal Dawson, Kid McFadden, and that lot—any man would be a world's champion today—used to fight for purses of $500, $600 or $700. And they'd fight, and when they lost, and got paid, they got the chance."

"Now look at the lightweight today, and what they get and what they expect. Al Wolcott is a good little fighter, but he isn't any better than a whole lot of the old-timers. Wolcott got into the habit of demanding something like $25,000 for his 'cut' when ever he was asked to make a match. He got the money madness and got it bad."

Wanted As Much
After Rillebe beat him and took the title one might expect to hear of Wolcott's being willing to fight all the best lightweight as fast as he could get to. For any fair purse offered, to fight back into the title again. He didn't do it. Even after he was beaten by Tommy Murphy he had an idea that he was worth as much as ever in the ring. Wolcott has probably broken off and refused more matches and has fought less as a champion than any title holder in the business. Perhaps he's lucky; but I know some of the old-timers who wouldn't have called off a match for a dislocated thumb, the way Wolcott has called off his. Wolcott's match with Featherweight Danieles at the last moment, and called it off for good.
"We didn't call off matches for any-

The way he is going he will win pretty nearly 50 games. Griffith has several other tasters of average ability, so that his staff by no means a weak one. But his club—infield and outfield—cannot compare to the Athletics. In fact, there is no team in organized baseball that can. And Mack has little concern to worry over pitching. Several capable youngsters have been added to his staff of able veterans flanked by the wizard Plank and supported by Goss and Bender.

New York should win the pennant because of its reserve strength in all departments. For the first time in many years McGraw is well supplied with pitchers. Al Demaree has made a real formidable array of batters. McGraw still thinks that Pittsburgh will furnish the chief contention against his third straight flag. He leans to the Phillies and Dodgers as being to fold. Maybe they will. The approaching season through the west should tell. Either Philadelphia or Brooklyn will have to be blessed by luck to win, but what club does not? Maybe the Red Sox did not have horse-shoes last season. In respect to reserve strength McGraw lays it all over either of these clubs, but they have the market advantage ends. Philadelphia and Brooklyn should both be right in the hunt till the bitter end unless crippled by injury or sickness.

Pittsburg is the only hope of the west. Chicago, which got away to a cyclonic start, crumpled down in week about a disappointing pitching staff on its very first long road trip. The Cubs will have the time of their lives getting into the first division unless Magic Murphy is able to dig up a real pitching staff somewhere. Cincinnati and St. Louis lack the class of any of the eastern clubs, with the possible exception of Boston, which is entitled to great credit for its work under George Stallings, but for the fact that Pittsburgh got away so poorly from the front seat. He overlooked a great opportunity to follow up on a week's western rivals before the eastern clubs demonstrated how weak they were. Pittsburgh, on paper, surely looks stronger than last year. Outfield and infield is stronger with Menner and Van Sluysen in the past week. The part of a real catcher, Clarke has had lots of good pitchers right along; trouble was, they were late rounding to form. Pittsburgh must always be respectfully regarded so long as Hans Wagner is able to do his round on one leg. He is just about half a team in himself. "The Flying Dutchman" never looked better than when in the east. He was more aggressive than he had been before in several years, and despite his renowned flexing carriage has taken all sorts of disparate chances on the bases.

thing less than a broken leg when I was fighting. I remember the day I boxed Jack O'Brien in Philadelphia. That match was on once and I trained for it and got into good shape. Then the match was postponed and I was finally notified that it was all off. I got out of training and didn't do a stroke of work for several weeks. Suddenly I was notified that the fight was on again in a couple of days. I learned that O'Brien had been boxing it. He had been training down at Atlantic City all the time, getting ready to put over on the "old man" when he caught him out of condition. I didn't call it off. I went down to Philadelphia and had O'Brien on the floor, whipped and practically out, when the police jumped in to save him with half a minute of the round still to go.

Old Time Fighting
The night I won the light-heavyweight title from George Gardner I was in poor shape to fight. I had run so much on the road in my few days of training, taking off weight in a hurry, that I had blistered the entire sides of both feet. I could hardly walk. Every time I moved around my shoes filled with blood. I didn't call it off. I walked to the ring without limping and fought twenty rounds without letting him know I was half crippled. And in the fourth round I smashed my right hand, hitting him on the side of the head, driving the first two knuckles back a full inch and splintering the bones. I didn't let him know that until it was all over either. I beat Corbett with a dislocated right thumb, and fought Jeffries with two smashed hands. When I fought Johnson my right arm was twisted by Jeannette in training and all the ligaments torn away from the elbow. I couldn't even block with the arm, and in the dressing room a doctor took a pint of fluid from down the back swelling. I fought Sharkey and Rutlin when I was so full of blood and I didn't know where I was, and knocked them both out. We didn't call fights off for little things in those days.

Comparing the chances we used to take with the careful way managers do today, I don't think I can't help thinking that this no decision, short bout thing, with big money paid both men, is a kind of a joke. All fighting is making what my friend Theodore Roosevelt calls "mollycoddlery" of what might be a lot of good men.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS.

It isn't the pull that you have men respect.
Or the help that your many friends give.
It's the efforts you make all yourself to collect.
The price of the life that you live.
It is fine to be helped, but it's finer by far
In the battle for glory or gold.
To stand up to the lilt tops, though distant they are,
And to gain them at last by yourself.

MAJOR OBJECTS TO EXPENDITURES

But the City Engineer Explains
That It All Is Only a Matter of Bookkeeping

In the supplementary estimate submitted to the commissioners by the city engineer there are three which the mayor objects to. He has asked the engineer to explain the items of expenditure were allowed when the first of the year that no expenditure was to be made unless it was authorized. The items objected to are $1029.50 for sewer maintenance, $1000.00 also for sewer maintenance and $1296.41 for sewer construction plant.

When asked about the matter yesterday afternoon, the city engineer replied that it was simply a matter of bookkeeping as to whether the purchase of certain tools and apparatus should be charged to capital account or taken out of current revenue.

SHOWS COURAGE; FIGHTS BACK; HAS WEIGHT

Willard Good as Heavyweight
But Lacks Proper Training.

San Francisco, July 5.—A promising heavyweight, Jose Willard may be lacking in many essentials but he has one or two qualities which should encourage one undertaking the task of giving him a pugilistic education.

To begin with, he is true blue in the matter of courage. In the next place, he can sustain a kicking blow without hanging out the slightest sign of distress.

In this direction, he recalls the ground work for anyone about to begin a course in the Queensbury university, and there is still about him a point about friend Jess. Instead of cringing, covering or putting his stick when he feels the impact of a gloved fist, he stands to his guns and fights back to the best of his ability.

In this direction, he recalls the methods of the old time ring hero, Tom Sharkey. It used to be said that swinging Tom on the jaw was like pressing the button which started a lot of rapid fire machinery.

Before Willard and Smith entered the ring the men who were trying to teach him the ropes looked for a quick finish. They felt sure that Willard would fall a victim to Gumbout's overhead right early in the evening.

It was amusing to hear the various predictions made as to the manner in which Willard would start his journey toward fame. Some said Jess would top him slowly like a monarch of the forest going down before the woodman's axe. Others said that he would collapse like a tall chimney struck amiss by a few well-aimed shots—that he'd come down "all of a heap."

When the test came, the gunner's best punch didn't budge Willard an inch. Of course, there were times when Smith was hard put to it to resist his lofty opponent. This meant that many of Gumbout's wallops were partly spent before they found lodgment, but he landed with full force occasionally. The blow which impressed us as to Willard's ability to sustain a beating was delivered in the 18th. It was Gumbout's pet right hander and Willard butted into it in such a way as to accentuate the weight of the delivery.

To my surprise, Willard did not show the slightest evidence of being lamed. On the contrary he went at Gumbout open-mouthed and had him dipping and sliding along ropes, to escape as awkward an assortment of right hand assaults as it has been my privilege to witness in many long years.

Willard sports a telling straight left. It is scarcely to blame, in a way, as between his reach of arm and the additional reach he commands by bending forward, an opponent would need to jump the ropes, almost, to be out of reach. But his right upper cut has been over-silvered. It is delivered stiffly and with little regard to direction or for these reasons it is easy to avoid. It was on each party ever ran foot of it is hard to imagine unless it was that Luther, in his anxiety to accomplish something, kept turning in head toward and thereby rendered himself a mark for the punch.

A few days before the bout the writer talked with Bob Armstrong at the Gunboat Smith camp. Willard's aim came up and old Bob remarked: "He is as fine a piece of raw material as I have ever seen but he needs a lot of schooling."

Bob is right. Just at present Jess has gunnery, strength and power of absorption. He has his straight left, he could not dispense with it if he wanted to, but whatever else he possesses is not much use to him. He needs to begin at the bottom and make a thorough study of ringmanship with especial attention to acquiring ideas of timing and measuring and following and advancing. Judging him from his performance with Gumbout, he does not know the psychological moment when he sees it. He had Smith cornered and was barely handled. It is known that there was friction in the Kansas corner and that poor Willard was a victim of conflicting instructions. Some of his henchmen were yelling to him to "go in" and others to "keep away."

During the bout Manager Tom Jones grabbed one of the aids by the hair and nearly succeeded in making him as bald headed as Jones is himself. It would be a reflection on Willard's intelligence, however, to claim that he was seriously handicapped by the mixed advice from his angel ring. It is a wonder that he has to rely on the jabbering idiots in his niche of the roped square. And what makes me think that Willard fought according to his own lights and was not hampered by the interference among his henchmen is that he pursued the even tenor of his way to some of the rounds when a number of spectators who sat close to the platform, were denouncing him and hurrying epithets at him.

This, by the way, was a new departure for San Francisco. It has always been claimed, and with good reason, that a San Francisco fight crowd is as quick as lightning in its denunciations and could find anywhere. But in a measure the Smith-Willard crowd was an exception and the only way to account for it is that a number of Smith's backers, who were huddled together, gathered a victory for their chance of winning their bet by abusing Willard.

MANAGER LEE OF HAMILTON KOLTS FOUND KEATING

Taught Him How to Use Spit-ball—Took Him as a Recruit and Developed Him.

Chicago, July 5.—I do not know how to go down there. I have been there many times before because I am a fan of the game. I have been there many times before because I am a fan of the game. I have been there many times before because I am a fan of the game.

Keating was kept in the schoolroom until 5 o'clock one afternoon to force him to study. He was told that if he had run downstairs when the dismissal bell sounded, to get to the ball grounds more quickly. When Ray refused the charge in penmanship set by the sister in charge as a punishment, he was expelled from the school.

That expulsion was one of the contributory causes to Ray's present fame in the baseball world. Young Keating next was enrolled in the Barnum public school, but his reputation as a "hot boy" preceded him and when he playfully pushed an instructor over a desk he was again expelled from the hall and sent to work.

Ray started to work. With no school coming his company, Keating went to work as a shipping clerk for the Home & Edwards silver shop in Bridgeport, and played the firm's team in a factory baseball league. The crowd was not so quick as all his inclinations ultimately led to his adopting baseball as a profession.

Raymond Herbert Keating was born in Bridgeport, Conn., on July 21, 1893, and therefore is not yet 20 years old. His parents were American born of Irish ancestry. His father, who has been dead for nine years, was engaged in the wholesale grocery and liquor business. His mother is living.

Ray played baseball from the time he could toddle. His only fair when expelled from the St. Charles parochial school was that he might devote him of his place as pitcher on the St. Charles team nine, which was a member of the city league.

But the parochial school did not need an unruly pupil as much as the nine needed a pitcher and he was named captain of the city league championship in 1908. These league games were of the semi-professional nature, and he received $25 each Sunday for his services.

As a member of the factory league, Keating was a star. His performance at the 1909 which gave him a tryout with the Bridgeport professional club in 1910. He was not only a star but was using him merely as a strong young hunk for morning batting practice. He was not only a star but was using him merely as a strong young hunk for morning batting practice.

Following his Bridgeport experience, Ray enrolled at Niagara college. His tuition was gratis in exchange for the value he might give the nine. His course consisted of original research work in baseball. After the close of the college season he played on Bridgeport summer pro.

In 1911 Veteran Jim O'Rourke, who lives in Bridgeport, recommended Keating to the Lawrence college. His New England league. He signed with Lawrence at a salary of $80 per month, but because of his lack of experience under fire was loaned to Hamilton of the Canadian league.

It was at Hamilton that Keating laid the foundation for his major league career. Manager Knott Lee, of the Hamilton club, had been a baseball pitcher and he imparted his knowledge to the young recruit, who took to the salvia delivery like a duck to water, so to speak. Ray finished the season with Hamilton, winning fourteen and losing eleven games on a club which won about half its games that season.

His Salary Raised. In the spring of 1912 the Lawrence club, which had signed the youngster the spring before for $80 per month, jumped his salary to $225 per month. Keating won twenty-six and lost eleven games, and through his ability and willingness to work in practically every phase of the game, he was instrumental in enabling Lawrence to win the New England league pennant.

Frank Carroll, president of the Highlanders, sent scouts to watch Keating's work, and purchased the youngster for $25,000. Keating reported in September and last four games before the season ended. One of these was a 4 to 1 defeat by the Chicago White Sox in a Sunday game at Comiskey Park on September 16, in which Keating held the Sox to seven hits and made such a good impression that keen critics predicted a future for him.

fully asked me not to throw any more curves. I haven't tried it since."

When Manager Chicago gave the welcome of his fans by 35,000 fans in Chicago on "Frank Chance day," it was Keating as his last hope to carry the day with victory. Keating lost, 6 to 3, but woody support contributed more to the result than any lack of pitching finesse.

The big athletic young fellow is still a boy in his views of life. He hasn't any plans for the future, except to become a great pitcher. He has the physique, and in addition to what he already knows, Chance is one of the greatest managers in the country for getting what there is from a pitcher.

Chance thinks Keating will be one of the greatest spitball pitchers in the country—perhaps as great as Ed Walsh. Keating says, "I would pitch my arm off for Chance. He's a prince."

That combination ought to make Keating glad he refused to write. "I do not know how to go down there."

READY FOR THE GONG AT WINNIPEG EXHIBITION

Winnipeg, July 5.—Arrangements are fast being completed for the opening of the Canadian Industrial Exhibition at the fair grounds and the various buildings are rapidly being occupied by exhibitors. The stables are now filled with horses, and the machinery hall is ready.

Following his Bridgeport experience, Ray enrolled at Niagara college. His tuition was gratis in exchange for the value he might give the nine. His course consisted of original research work in baseball. After the close of the college season he played on Bridgeport summer pro.

In 1911 Veteran Jim O'Rourke, who lives in Bridgeport, recommended Keating to the Lawrence college. His New England league. He signed with Lawrence at a salary of $80 per month, but because of his lack of experience under fire was loaned to Hamilton of the Canadian league.

It was at Hamilton that Keating laid the foundation for his major league career. Manager Knott Lee, of the Hamilton club, had been a baseball pitcher and he imparted his knowledge to the young recruit, who took to the salvia delivery like a duck to water, so to speak. Ray finished the season with Hamilton, winning fourteen and losing eleven games on a club which won about half its games that season.

His Salary Raised. In the spring of 1912 the Lawrence club, which had signed the youngster the spring before for $80 per month, jumped his salary to $225 per month. Keating won twenty-six and lost eleven games, and through his ability and willingness to work in practically every phase of the game, he was instrumental in enabling Lawrence to win the New England league pennant.

Frank Carroll, president of the Highlanders, sent scouts to watch Keating's work, and purchased the youngster for $25,000. Keating reported in September and last four games before the season ended. One of these was a 4 to 1 defeat by the Chicago White Sox in a Sunday game at Comiskey Park on September 16, in which Keating held the Sox to seven hits and made such a good impression that keen critics predicted a future for him.

Clever Detective Work—A clever bit of detective work was the result of the arrest of a woman named Allen who arrested Thomas G. Oakes. Oakes had stolen a number of hides from a C.N.R. car spotted behind Galt's Ltd., on the south side and the complaint was lodged that they had disappeared. The detective found that a man was selling hides to the Edmonton Sausage factory and went there, catching the man in the act of disposing of hides considerably below market value. He was taken into custody and confessed.

FAIR WAGE VIOLATED SAYS BUSINESS AGENT

Royal Alexandra Hospital Annex Conditions Will Be Brought to Trades Council Notice

That the city's fair wage clause was being openly violated by the contractors for the addition to the Royal Alexandra hospital was stated at a meeting of the Associated Amalgamated Carpenters last night, by the business agent, J. A. S. Smith. It was decided that the alleged unfair conditions should be brought to the notice of the Trades and Labour Council.

The proposed amalgamation of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and the Amalgamated Society came up for consideration, and it was agreed to request the Canadian district office, Toronto, to forward a copy of the agreement entered into by representatives of the two societies, sitting at Cleveland, Ohio.

Judge Noel was commissioned to preside at the recent, but was since sent on circuit in the Peace River country. Prior to leaving Edmonton Judge Noel arranged that Judge Clowdewell should hear the recent. Mr. Ford, however, contended that Judge Noel had no authority to delegate his authority.

Two Cases Remanded—George Church, who was committed for medical examination as to his sanity, again appeared in the district criminal court today. Crown Prosecutor Cogswell stated that the examination had not yet been completed, and Judge Taylor granted a further remand. George Fisher and James Harrison, found guilty of passing forged cheques, were to be signed by E. F. Clark, a south side contractor, on a second-hand clothes dealer on First street, came before Judge Taylor for sentence. Owing to the accused being unrepresented by counsel in case was remanded until Monday.

G. R. Loftus Dying—The condition of G. R. Loftus, who was badly hurt at the new Grand Trunk hotel on Wednesday, is serious, and the Royal Alexandra hospital state that he cannot live a great length of time, it is feared. The left side of his body is punctured and his left lung practically destroyed, so that no hopes are held out for his recovery.

MacDonald, B.A. Members will meet in the Oddfellows hall at 10 a.m. Members of the Orange Young Men's association are also requested to meet at 10 a.m. to take part in the parade.
